Construction Begun on Deep Disposal Well

Last month, when construction of a so-called Class I Deep Disposal Well began at a site north of Northline and west of Wahrman in Romulus, controversy over the safety of such a facility resurfaced.

According to Douglas F. Wicklund, president of Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS), which will build and operate the facility, such wells – planned for the commercial disposal of industrial liquid wastes – provide manufacturers with a safe and permanent disposal alternative. Supporting his assertion, Wicklund cites a 1989 Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) study which deemed Class I hazardous wells "safer than virtually all other waste disposal practices."

Class I wells are steel and concreteencased shafts, placed deep in the earth, through which liquid wastes are emplaced into porous rock formations 4,000 feet below useable drinking waters. The material is prevented from moving upward, according to expert geologists, by impermeable rock formations, thousands of feet thick.

"Protection of the environment through environmentally safe and responsible disposal of industrial liquids is our single overriding objective," said Wicklund, who explained that EDS chose the Northline/Wahrman site in Romulus because of its geological suitability, light industrial zoning, rural setting, and accessibility. "We feel that deep-well technology offers the safest and most effective proven method of disposal."

According to the Texas Water Commission, Class I wells have been safely operating in their state for over 40 years; further, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) recently asserted that, "of the 20-plus industrial waste disposal wells (Class I) presently operating (in Michigan), we have had no instances of well failure or contamination during a period of approximately 21 years."

EPA regulations require that all wastes, when disposed of, will remain confined for a period of at least 10,000 years.

EDS, which has already received permits from the EPA and the MDNR for the facility, will also develop a laboratory, offices, and a holding and filtration facility, and will install utilities, a rail spur, and other site improvements. The entire facility will be constructed and operated strictly according to the EPA and Michigan Department of Natural Resources requirements, specifications, and regulations, Wicklund assured.

Discussing the kinds of companies that will utilize the disposal facility, James S. Clapperton, director of marketing and public relations for EDS, said, "Our primary market will be manufacturers located in southeastern Michigan. We intend to offer liquid-waste generators a substantial cost savings by allowing them access to a secure facility and, therefore, an alternative to landfill disposal, incineration, and other high-risk practices."

When operations begin (projected date: the first quarter of 1994), EDS plans to dispose of light liquids only, most of which are comprised of approximately 95% water. These liquids, for the most part, have already been recycled and have no energy value.

The EPA estimates that, of the approximately nine billion gallons of liquid hazardous wastes generated each year in the United States, over 50% is safely and permanently disposed of using Class I deep disposal wells.

But many Romulus residents remain unconvinced of the facility's safety. One such resident is City Councilman Russell Lambert

"Since the initial proposal for this facility came before the City, I've spent a lot of time studying materials from a variety of expert sources. I don't think it's prudent to rely solely on information selected by a corporation which has an enormous financial interest in citing only favorable opinions; many other experts out there are more pessimistic about this disposal method's safety."

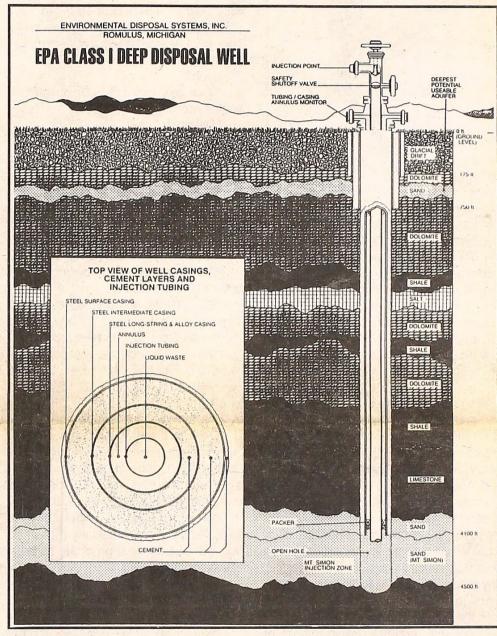

Lambert said that his research has led him to be skeptical about several of the EDS claims.

"For instance," he said, "many of the wastes to be disposed of are man-made chemicals never encountered in nature. They are so new that we have not had time to thoroughly analyze the possible reactions that they could undergo in unusual environmental conditions. I find it difficult to believe that anyone can be unconditionally certain that these wastes, when combined together in an environment where temperatures and pressures are much higher than they are on the surface, will not react in some unsuspectedly dangerous manner."

Lambert is also incredulous about the reliability of a safety estimate involving thousands of years.

"Geologists can talk all they want to about waste materials remaining confined for 10,000 years; obviously, no one has actually been able to test such a theory and, as far as I'm concerned, too little is known about factors such as seismic activity and plate tectonics to allow for any such certainty."

Still another of Lambert's concerns involves the possibility of residents' exposure to harmful chemicals if a vehicle transporting wastes to the facility was to be involved in an accident.

"Such exposure," said Lambert, "is a hazard which Romulus people already face due to the chemicals currently hauled through our town by trucks and, especially, railroad cars. The additional traffic generated by the EDS well will increase risks significantly."

Councilman Lambert said that, despite voicing these concerns to his colleagues, he finds himself in the minority when it comes to opposing the well's construction in our city. Most of the other elected officials — convinced that, far from posing a danger, the well will actually perform a valuable and necessary service — look forward to the possibility that City coffers could be enriched by money from the facility. In fact, EDS has made an offer to pay the City an annual royalty of up to five percent of the money earned by the well. So far, this proposal has been neither accepted nor rejected.

And, in the long run, City acceptance or opposition is irrelevant, anyway, since it has no say-so over whether or not the well can be located and operated here. That power lies with agencies of the State of Michigan.

New Road Signs

By Officer Rick Schwartz, Romulus Police Department

To help clarify a confusing situation, new traffic signs have been erected at Goddard and Romaine. For those of you unfamiliar with street names, this is the intersection that brings you into downtown Romulus from the south, just past Crane Funeral Home and right at Metro Carburetor. The new signs are an advanced warning sign, located on northbound Goddard just north of Bibbins, and a "yield" sign with an advisory message (Except Vehicles Turning Right) under it at the Goddard curve. Also added to the intersection are "no parking" signs on the south side of Goddard. These signs will assist the motorist continuing onto Romaine from northbound Goddard by increasing the ability to see westbound Goddard traffic.

A Sick Cat Tail

By Tom Shamanski

Last week, I took my cat Dolly to the vet because I thought she was sick.

You see, for three days, Dolly had spent her time sleeping, scratching, rolling over, and sleeping again. This, for those unfamiliar with cats, is not unusual feline behavior, but such behavior is usually performed on a full stomach. For the first time since assuming command of my apartment, Dolly hadn't been eating.

In order to get her into one of those plastic transport boxes, I had to promise her that, the following weekend, I'd rent the video, Detective School Dropouts. It's one of her favorites and, as I'm a big Meryl Streep fan myself, I like it, too.

Anyway, arriving at the Kings-Ran-Someé Animal Hospital and Medical Center, I gave the receptionist all the necessary information: who to call in case of an emergency; where I worked and how much I made; and, if needed, my possibilities for readily obtaining a bank loan for services rendered by the vet, the animal techncian, the laboratory technologist, and the guy in charge of valet parking, as well as for any necessary CAT scans. Suddenly, Dolly didn't seem so sick after all; I, however, was beginning to feel a little queasy.

After signing a statement that thereby made the Hospital the beneficiary of my life-insurance policy if I happened to pass on before paying my bill, Dolly and I finally made it into the waiting room.

There, in front of us, was Door #1, Door #2, and Door #3. Although I wanted to pick #2 – I was certain that I would then win "A NEW CAR!" – the vet emerged from Door #1 and beckoned me in.

Still eyeing Door #2 as I was entering Door #1, I heard the vet say, "Aren't we forgetting something, sir?"

"Huh?"

"Your cat; you left your cat in the waiting room."

"Omigosh."

Quickly, I went to get Dolly, who was muttering under her breath: "And after all I've done for you."

Once again, the process of gathering information resumed – although, this time, it was indeed concerning Dolly's health, not my financial status or even the reason why I was wearing a cape.

"And what seems to be our problem today?" the vet started.

"Well, I'm feeling a little nauseated thinking about how much all this is going to cost me. Doc, I don't make a lot of . . ."

"We have a large variety of payment plans and, if that doesn't work out, well, we've got a lot of messy cages that need cleaning."

"I'll take Door #2," I said.

Disregarding this, she proceeded to tell me that blood would be drawn – Dolly's – and, depending on the results, a full treatment plan would be worked up. I was told to return in three hours. I did.

As I again entered Room #1, the vet said, "Although the blood work seemed fine, we still felt it appropriate to do a series of additional tests and x-rays. Those turned out all right, too, so I checked her for fleas, and she had some."

"Fleas? That's it? She had fleas?"

"Not to worry; we gave her a bath, put on some conditioner, fluffed her, and covered her with powder."

"Fleas? She had fleas?"

"Yes, isn't it wonderful that she wasn't really sick? But, to be on the safe side, I'd like to see her again in a week," she said.

I told her I'd have to check with my broker, first. □

Local Commentary

The Passage of SB 1

By Gregory E. Pitoniak, State Representative, 22nd District

(Editor's note: The passage of SB 1 has been a matter of great debate, concerning both its adoption and what is to follow. The issue is of particular concern to Romulus residents, who have worked so hard in the past few years to build a technology-oriented education system that will meet our students' future needs - but who have also felt the burden of increasing dollars spent for their property taxes. For this reason, The Romulus News has invited our state representative, Gregory Pitoniak, to keep his constituents updated about the Legislature's actions concerning our schools' future and how they will be funded; he has graciously consented to contribute periodic articles to the "Local Commentary" column. As always, the views expressed in "Local Commentary" do not necessarily reflect those of The Romulus News.)

When the Michigan House of Representatives passed Senate Bill One (SB 1) on July 21, 1993, just 20 hours after the same bill had passed the State Senate, an earthquake rumbled through the halls of many a school board office and city hall in Michigan. When that week began, no one could have anticipated that such a proposal of tremendous implications and potential would have been offered, let alone adopted, by the Michigan Legislature. As I am now sure you are aware, SB 1 will repeal all property taxes used to fund Michigan public school operations. I supported the passage of this legislation and I would like to take this opportunity to share with you my feelings on this matter.

My position has long been a belief that permanent property tax relief and school finance reform could only be accomplished by eliminating the dependence on property taxes to fund public schools. Though the process by which this vote came about concerned me, and the lack of an identified alternative source of funding for Michigan public schools was of even greater concern, I felt compelled to support this historic opportunity.

Representative Gregory Pitoniak

Senate Bill 1 would cut property taxes Statewide by 65% through the elimination of all local school operating taxes, effective July, 1994. For a Romulus property owner, SB 1 would reduce your annual property tax bill by 44.82 mills, or about a 63% reduction in your total property tax bill. It has been estimated that $6.3 billion in annual local school revenue (Statewide) will be eliminated through SB 1, once it is signed into law by the Governor. I do caution you to realize that the next step, and a very large step at that, is for the Governor and the Legislature to identify and approve new sources of revenue (i.e., tax increases) to fund our public schools. Practically, this must be accomplished by December 31, 1993. The options for alternative revenue sources are wide ranging and could include the following or a combination of the following: expansion of the sales tax into services; an increase in the sales, business, or income taxes; or an add-back of much lower property tax mills levied either Statewide or by a local option vote.

Special Cookbook To Raise Funds for St. Aloysius

At the annual St. Aloysius Festival, to be held Labor Day weekend (Friday through Monday, September 3–6), St. Aloysius Catholic Church will be selling a specially created cookbook featuring the favorite recipes – from hors d'oeuvres to main meal selections – of its parish members and students. The unique, spiral-bound book, with its sections separated by attractive dividers, is a bargain at only $6.25 per copy. Proceeds from the sale will go to the St. Aloysius building fund. "Benny"-fit Steak Roast

Employees of United Brass will be having a "Benny"-fit Steak Roast for their friend and co-worker, Ben Warren, on Sunday, August 29, at the Progressive Hall in Romulus. Ben has become disabled due to kidney failure, and is currently on Harper Hospital's waiting list for a kidney transplant. Proceeds from the sale of tickets, which are $10 each, will be used to help pay for this very costly operation. (Cash donations are also more than welcome!) For more information, please contact Linda Smith at United Brass (942-9224).

Ben's friends say that they're aware of how tough times are right now, so if you can't find it in your budget to send a donation or purchase a ticket, please take a moment of your time to say a prayer for Ben and his family.

Attention, Area Crafters!

The Romulus Arts Council is planning its annual Arts & Crafts Fair for Saturday, September 18, in the new Historic Park that's located in downtown Romulus. The Group is currently seeking out artists and crafters who may be interested in purchasing table space to sell their wares. Spaces are just $12.50.

Anyone interested in participating in the event, or who needs more information, should call Gloria Chandler at (313) 941-2678.

Romulus Profile: Barbara Schultz

By Tom Shamanski

In 1979, Barbara Schultz, a 26-year Romulus resident, began working at the Romulus Senior Center, located on Bibbins Street in downtown Romulus. In her position as program assistant, Schultz is responsible for a large variety of tasks necessary to keep the Center's activities running smoothly.

To Schultz, however, her post is much more than an "eight to four-thirty" job.

"Some of the seniors feel that they are no longer useful," Schultz explained in a recent interview. "But I believe that God created all of us with special ideas in mind. This process of fulfilling these ideas doesn't end at any certain age.

"Because of this," she continued, "I enjoy helping our senior citizens to see that they're still useful and productive individuals, and that there's a great deal of life for them to enjoy."

Born in Detroit, Michigan, the 50year-old Schultz moved to New Boston in the early 1960s. Although she had prior work experience, Schultz opted, at that time, to work in the home, raising her young son Allen.

"When Allen was in his teens," she said, "I applied for a job opening here at the Center, and got the job. Then, I worked only two days a week, mostly driving the van to take the seniors on various trips, but it was a job that helped me fulfill what I wanted to do: help people."

During her tenure at the Senior Center, Schultz has taken on several additional responsibilities and is now a fulltime employee. Working with the Center's senior citizen coordinator, Marilyn Masters, Schultz plans senior activities, both within and outside the Center.

Among the indoor functions which she helps to plan and coordinate are ceramics classes, card games, bingo, oil painting, crafts, health screening, daily lunches (for those age 60 or over), and

"The referrals are one of our most important functions," stated Schultz. "Often, seniors are unsure where to call for help, so they call us. We have the information concerning where their needs may be met."

Such referrals often concern areas such as legal counseling, medical care, home improvement and repair, and "Home Share," a program which matches single seniors with prospective housemates, allowing them to lighten expense loads.

"The Home Share program is one which gives me much personal satisfaction," said Schultz. "Another program that I especially like to work on is our Tuesday social club, Club #1.

Schultz went on to explain that Club #1 is not only an opportunity for seniors ing to their special needs. Schultz was asked to comment.

"Often," she said, "we'll show movies or have a speaker come in. We try to get speakers who can help everyone with general, everyday living.

"For instance," she added, "we might bring in a policeman to talk about 'con artists' who prey mostly on older people, or we'll have someone from the Fire Department talk about fire safety. However, the most important things that the seniors want to hear about are healthrelated issues."

When asked to list outside-Center activities that she assists in planning, Schultz replied, "We have regular trips to museums, fairs, the zoo, community theater productions, shopping centers, and restaurants. Of these, the shopping trips and outings to community theater are popular, but dining out is the most popular of all.

In arranging trips, Schultz strives for variety and to keep the outings within a reasonable price range. When using a travel agency, Schultz said, she'll compare costs between a number of agencies, but usually finds that the best deals come from agencies which specialize in senior-citizen excursions.

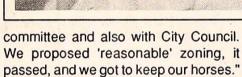

One particularly enjoyable one-day trip, she said, is to an Amish flea market in Shipshewana, Indiana.

Said Schultz, "The flea market is held on part of a 100-acre field, and it's huge. A meal at an Amish restaurant is included in the fare; the restaurant setting is similar to that of restaurants in Frankenmuth (Michigan). After the meal, they have some absolutely delicious shoofly and oatmeal pies." (Note: Shoofly pie has a filling which consists of layers of molasses and brown sugar mixed with flour, topped with a crumbly crust of the sugar mixture. It got its name from the fact that it attracts flies that have to be

In fact, she noted, it is to this very spot that Schultz' husband Mel formerly journeyed to buy and sell horses. Periodically, he would attend a weekly horse and cattle auction that was held on a separate area of the Amish grounds. To this day, Schultz added, the auctions continue.

Asked about whether she was involved in many other organizations or clubs, Schultz answered, "Although I don't have time for it now, Gail Blanchard, Charlotte McBride, and I formed the Romulus Horseman's Association in the late '60s. This came about because a previous City administration wanted to enact zoning laws that would prohibit keeping horses in Romulus.

"After contacting several horse peoto socialize, but is also a medium through , ple, and getting organized," she continued, which they can seek information pertain , ued, "we met with the City's planning

Schultz then noted that the Association has now evolved into an active social club. The group participates in trail rides and, occasionally, sponsors a horse show. Schultz served as the Association's president for several years during its beginnings.

The Romulus Wesleyan Church, located at Five Points, is a major part of Schultz's life. Currently, she serves as the secretary and treasurer of the Church's Sunday school. In addition, Schultz teaches weekly "teen" classes and, in general, does whatever else is requested of her by Church Pastor Mike McClellan.

Schultz' husband, 71-year-old Mel, retired from Great Lakes Steel's Ecorse facility after serving 37 years there as a maintenance welder.

"I try to enjoy his retirement with him and work at the same time. It's quite a juggling act," she smiled.

The Schultzes are the parents of Allen, 27, a Romulus resident who works in maintenance at a large Garden City apartment complex. Allen is married to Dawn, who is self-employed, operating a cleaning business from their home. Allen and Dawn have three children.

Six-year-old Jodi has an interest in everything. She is the "little mother" of the other two, said Schultz, and she thinks that she knows everything there is to know! Stephanie, at four, has the "brightest, curliest red hair you've ever seen," Schultz bragged. And one-yearold Heather, who recently had her first "Barney" birthday party, likes to watch Barney on television - but, according to Schultz, Heather was a little unsettled when she actually saw the popular dinosaur "in person."

In her leisure time, Schultz enjoys cross-country skiing, hiking, bird-watching, and tennis - when she can find the time. Together, the Schultzes like to fish, camp, and go on weekend jaunts "to get away from it all." In celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, the couple vacationed in Hawaii.

"While we were there," said Schultz, "I went flying on a glider - something I've always wanted to do. It was the pilot, a 76-year-old woman, and me."

Then, grinning, she added, "All of the 'younger set' were afraid to do it!"

A personable, soft-spoken lady, Schultz obviously enjoys doing all that she can for the seniors. In large part, this seems to be true because she quietly carries her religion - and, consequently, her philosophy of life - with her each morning when she arrives at the Center.

The senior citizens of the City of Romulus are lucky to have such a wonderful working for their benefit. .

Senate Bill 1 will also impact the operations of your city and county governments. One section of the bill essentially requires all Michigan cities to "freeze" the assessed valuation on all properties in 1994 at the 1993 levels. Furthermore, the revenue for Downtown Development Authorities (DDAs) and Tax Increment Finance Authorities (TIFAs) will be greatly reduced. These adverse impacts on local governments may have to be revisited by the Michigan Legislature in the next few months.

For your information, I continue to be an activist in the ongoing negotiations on this issue. In fact, I was recently appointed by Speaker Hertel to serve on the House Democratic Education Task Force, established to get public input on what Michigan "schools of the future" should look like and what is the fairest means for funding public schools. The Task Force will hold its first public hearing on Thursday, August 19, at 2 p.m. at the Southfield Civic Center. In addition, I continue to serve as a member of the House Taxation Committee and the Bi-Partisan Legislative Team, where recommendations for public school finance are likely to be generated.

You and I must remain vigilant in our efforts to assure that the new system for funding Michigan's public schools is fair to taxpayers, as well as to school districts and local governments. There should be adequate tax revenues to assure that dramatic reductions in programs do not occur. Even so, I do believe that this approach will force greater efficiency in school districts, including some reductions and consolidations.

Again, I am pleased to share my thoughts with you. I hope that the information and insight I have provided is helpful.

If you should have any questions or comments on this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me at (517) 373-0852. Please send any correspondence to me at P.O. Box 30014, Lansing, MI

STATUTORY MEETING, JULY 12, 1993

The Statutory Meeting of the Romulus Board of Education held Monday, July 12, 1993, was called to order by Superintendent Bedell at 7:20 P.M.

Panda Gardens Will Pander To Your Cravings for Chines Food

By Lisa Kreutzer

Romulus residents who crave Chinese cuisine will be happy to hear that an old friend has come back to Town – and, this time, he's here to stay!

When Peter Choi – a native of Canton, China, who grew up in Hong Kong and migrated to the United States in 1972 – opened up the China Chef (located in the Wayneport Plaza) in January of 1989, it was the only Chinese restaurant in Romulus. It quickly earned a reputation for serving up fresh, delicious carryout food, with an average order taking only 10 to 15 minutes to fill.

But, after working at his culinary craft for awhile, Choi decided that he wanted to take some time to further study the art of preparing different styles of Chinese food, so he sold the China Chef and went back to learn more about cooking at his family's Chinese restaurant in Northville

Now, after a period of intensive study, Choi has opened a new restaurant here in Romulus – the Panda Garden, located on Middlebelt Road at the corner of Beverly. There, he and his wife Ann – who's also from China – are once again serving up some of the finest carry-out food available anywhere.

When asked why he is so devoted to a career in making fine Chinese cuisine, Choi replied that, because his family was in the restaurant business, he developed a love of cooking good food at an early age. For him, it is a great pleasure to see people enjoying a dish that he has prepared with loving care.

Peter and Ann have two sons – Donald, who is currently a student at Eastern Michigan University, and Edwin, who attends high school in Canton. Both of the young men, who were born here in Michigan, work at their parents' restaurant when not in school.

Be sure to drop in at the Panda Garden and welcome the Chois back to Romulus – and, while you're there, pick up some of their wonderful carry-out and save yourself the chore of cooking dinner tonight!

Remodeling Improves Home's Value

By Celia Chesno

Well, you've decided to do some remodeling and you want to know what will give you the greatest return on your money when you retire in a few years. You have every expectation of moving to a place where the sun shines every day!

You call your local realtor to see if she can give you any input, and she says, "Of course, I can't be sure which things buyers will want, but I can give you a few general guidelines which may help you decide where to invest your money. Adding another bedroom seems like a great idea, but someone buying your home may use that room as a den or office. You might consider putting in good lighting, extra shelves, and maybe improving the electrical outlets."

"Generally," she continues, "people are most interested in a home's kitchen. If yours is old and outdated, this is where your money will probably be best spent.

Consider that, in our busy life-styles of today, it is often true that the only time a family gets to spend together is dinner-time. Making the kitchen more efficient and cozy just might pay off with a huge return when you sell.

"Another room that people are always interested in is the bathroom. They look for bright and clean – new cabinets, mirrors, and lighting will go a long way! Also, consider an added bathroom; a key question when people are looking for a home is always; 'Howmany bathrooms?"

Finally, your realtor reminds you that it is important to have your home in good repair.

"Preventative maintenance will save you time and money when it comes time to put your home on the market," she explains. "Maintaining your landscaping, or having professional landscaping done, will attract people to your home and let them know that you care about the home."

"Thank you!" you tell your friendly realtor. "I knew we could count on you to help us decide which improvements would best suit us financially and would be most in keeping with our life-style."

Your local realtor replies, "No thanks are necessary! I'm here to help you make good decisions. You know that you can call me anytime I can be of help to you!"

Please feel free to call me if I can assist you. You can reach me at Century 21 Suburban (464-0205) or my home (941-5704). I also carry a beeper (941-0941) so that you can contact me at any time.

Happy 100th Birthday Ella (Bolinski) Hoffman

Celebrating her 100th birthday on Friday, August 6, 1993, was Mrs. Ella (Bolinski) Hoffman, a former resident of Romulus for more than 60 years.

A native of Detroit, Michigan, Ella met and married her husband, Charles Hoffman, in her hometown. At first, the two lived in and managed a Detroit apartment building, but in January of 1919, they moved to a Romulus farm located at 13720 Wahrman Road (between Eureka and Northline). Charles died in 1942.

Of the four children born to Ella and Charles, the first two were born in Detroit; the last two on their Romulus farm. They were Mildred (born 1914), Florence (born 1918; died 1972), Eleanor (born 1921), and Charles (born 1924). In all, Ella has six grand-children and 13 great-grandchildren.

Ella now resides in Lewiston with her two daughters.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who made me see everything and showed me the way to reach my ideals. You who gave me the devine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones to your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Persons must pray the prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish. After third day, wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as this favor is granted. MKV
